

Ph.D. in Risk Management and Insurance
Terry College of Business
University of Georgia

The Risk Management and Insurance Program of the University of Georgia's Terry College of Business invites applications for those interested in pursuing a Ph.D. in Risk Management and Insurance, beginning Fall 2012. The program is geared towards candidates interested in pursuing an academic career (teaching and research) in risk management and insurance.

The Ph.D. program typically lasts four years, with coursework during the first two years followed by two years producing original research (dissertation). Coursework is broad-based and includes courses in financial and economic theory, as well as the application of these theories to risk management and insurance.

Candidates are required to hold a Bachelor Degree (or higher). Strong preference is given to candidates demonstrating strong quantitative skills. Risk management and insurance industry experience is a plus, but is not required. English proficiency is required. Tuition waivers and a stipend are provided for all Ph.D. students.

Applications received by January 4, 2012 are assured of full consideration. To apply, please follow the University and College guidelines found here:

http://www.terry.uga.edu/phd/application_procedures.html

For additional information, please contact Dr. David Eckles by email at deckles@terry.uga.edu. The University of Georgia is an equal opportunity, affirmative action institution.